Proposal for a regulation
Recital 2

Text proposed by the Commission

(2) Member States are increasingly introducing, or are considering introducing, national laws on the matters covered by this Regulation, imposing, in particular, diligence requirements for providers of intermediary services. Those diverging national laws negatively affect the internal market, which, pursuant to Article 26 of the Treaty, comprises an area without internal frontiers in which the free movement of goods and services and freedom of establishment are ensured, taking into account the inherently cross-border nature of the internet, which is generally used to provide those services. The conditions for the provision of intermediary services across the internal market should be harmonised, so as to provide businesses with access to new markets and opportunities to exploit the benefits of the internal market, while allowing consumers and other recipients of the services to have increased choice.

Amendment

(2) For years, politics has relied on voluntary cooperation with a view to address these risks and challenges. Since this has proved insufficient and there has been a lack of harmonised rules at Union level, Member States have been increasingly introducing, or are considering introducing, national laws, imposing, in particular, diligence requirements for providers of intermediary services. (13) Considering the particular characteristics of the services concerned and the corresponding need to make the providers thereof subject to certain specific obligations, it is necessary to distinguish, within the broader category of providers of hosting services as defined in this Regulation, the subcategory of online platforms. Online platforms, such as social networks or online marketplaces, should be defined as providers of hosting services that not only store information provided by the recipients of the service at their request, but that also disseminate that information to the public, again at their request. However, in order to avoid imposing overly broad obligations, providers of hosting services should not be considered as online platforms where the dissemination to the public is merely a minor and purely ancillary feature of another service and that feature cannot, for objective technical reasons, be used without that other, principal service, and the integration of that feature is not a means to circumvent the applicability of the rules of this Regulation applicable to online platforms. For example, the comments section in an online newspaper could constitute such a feature, where it is clear that it is ancillary to the main service represented by the publication of news under the editorial responsibility of the publisher.

Proposal for a regulation Recital 15 a (new)

Text proposed by the Commission

Amendment

(15 a) The online activities of a person allow for deep insights into their personality as well as their past and future behaviour, making it possible to manipulate them. The high sensitivity of such information and its potential for abuse requires special protection. In line with the principle of data minimisation and in order to prevent unauthorised disclosure, identity theft and other forms of abuse of personal data, recipients should have the right to use and pay for information society services anonymously wherever technically possible. Anonymous payment can take place for example by paying in cash, by using cash-paid vouchers or prepaid payment instruments. The general and indiscriminate collection of personal data concerning every use of a digital service interferes disproportionately with the right to privacy. Users should therefore have a right not to be subject to pervasive tracking when using information society services. To this end, the processing of personal data concerning the use of services should be limited to the extent strictly necessary to provide the service and to bill the users. Processing personal data for displaying advertisements is not strictly necessary. Following the jurisprudence on communications meta-data providers should not be required to indiscriminately retain personal data concerning the use of the service by all recipients. Applying effective end-to-end encryption to data is essential for trust in and security on the Internet, and effectively prevents unauthorised third party access. The fact that encryption technology is abused by some for illegal purposes does not justify generally weakening effective end-to-end encryption.

Amendment 184
Vladimír Bilčík, Lena Düpont

Proposal for a regulation
Recital 40

(40) Providers of hosting services play a particularly important role in tackling illegal content online, as they store information provided by and at the request of the recipients of the service and typically give other recipients access thereto, sometimes on a large scale. It is important that all providers of hosting services, regardless of their size, put in place user-friendly notice and action mechanisms that facilitate the notification of specific items of information that the notifying party considers to be illegal content to the provider of hosting services concerned ('notice'), pursuant to which that provider can decide whether or not it agrees with that assessment and wishes to remove or disable access to that content ('action'). Provided the requirements on notices are met, it should be possible for individuals or entities to notify multiple specific items of allegedly illegal content through a single notice. The obligation to put in place notice and action mechanisms should apply, for instance, to file storage and sharing services, web hosting services, advertising servers and paste bins, in as far as they qualify as providers of hosting services covered by this Regulation.

Recital 42 a (new)

Text proposed by the Commission

Amendment

(42 a) When moderating content, mechanisms voluntarily employed by platforms should not lead to ex-ante control measures based on automated tools or upload-filtering of content. Automated tools are currently unable to differentiate illegal content from content that is legal in a given context and therefore routinely result in overblocking legal content. Human review of automated reports by service providers or their contractors does not fully solve this problem, especially if it is outsourced to private staff that lack sufficient independence, qualification and accountability. Ex-ante control should be understood to mean making publishing subject to an automated decision. Filtering automated content submissions such as spam should be permitted. Where automated tools are otherwise used for content moderation the provider should ensure human review and the protection of legal content.

(47) The misuse of services of online platforms by frequently providing manifestly illegal content or by frequently submitting manifestly unfounded notices or complaints under the mechanisms and systems, respectively, established under this Regulation undermines trust and harms the rights and legitimate interests of the parties concerned. Therefore, there is a need to put in place appropriate and proportionate safeguards against such misuse. Information should be considered to be manifestly illegal content and notices or complaints should be considered manifestly unfounded where it is evident to a layperson, without any substantive analysis, that the content is illegal respectively that the notices or complaints are unfounded. Under certain conditions, online platforms should temporarily suspend their relevant activities in respect of the person engaged in abusive behaviour. This is without prejudice to the freedom by online platforms to determine their terms and conditions and establish stricter measures in the case of manifestly illegal content related to serious crimes. For reasons of transparency, this possibility should be set out, clearly and in sufficiently detail, in the terms and conditions of the online platforms. Redress should always be open to the decisions taken in this regard by online platforms and they should be subject to oversight by the competent Digital Services Coordinator. The rules of this Regulation on misuse should not prevent online platforms from taking other measures to address the provision of illegal content by recipients of their service or other misuse of their services, in accordance with the applicable Union and national law. Those rules are without prejudice to any possibility to hold the persons engaged in misuse liable, including for damages, provided for in Union or national law.

deploy the necessary means to diligently mitigate the systemic risks identified in the risk assessment. Very large online platforms should under such mitigating measures consider, for example, enhancing or otherwise adapting the design and functioning of their content moderation, algorithmic recommender systems and online interfaces, so that they discourage and limit the dissemination of illegal content, adapting their decision-making processes, or adapting their terms and conditions. They may also include corrective measures, such as discontinuing advertising revenue for specific content, or other actions, such as improving the visibility of authoritative information sources. Very large online platforms may reinforce their internal processes or supervision of any of their activities, in particular as regards the detection of systemic risks. They may also initiate or increase cooperation with trusted flaggers, organise training sessions and exchanges with trusted flagger organisations, and cooperate with other service providers, including by initiating or joining existing codes of conduct or other self-regulatory measures. Any measures adopted should respect the due diligence requirements of this Regulation and be effective and appropriate for mitigating the specific risks identified, in the interest of safeguarding public order, protecting privacy and fighting fraudulent and deceptive commercial practices, and should be proportionate in light of the very large online platform's economic capacity and the need to avoid unnecessary restrictions on the use of their service, taking due account of potential negative effects on the fundamental rights of the recipients of the service.

(62) A core part of a very large online platform's business is the manner in which information is prioritised and presented on its online interface to facilitate and optimise access to information for the recipients of the service. This is done, for example, by algorithmically suggesting, ranking and prioritising information, distinguishing through text or other visual representations, or otherwise curating information provided by recipients. Such recommender systems can have a significant impact on the ability of recipients to retrieve and interact with information online. They also play an important role in the amplification of certain messages, the viral dissemination of information and the stimulation of online behaviour. Consequently, very large online platforms should ensure that recipients are appropriately informed, and can influence the information presented to them. They should clearly present the main parameters for such recommender systems in an easily comprehensible manner to ensure that the recipients understand how information is prioritised for them. They should also ensure that the recipients enjoy alternative options for the main parameters, including options that are not based on profiling of the recipient.

De zeer grote onlineplatforms voorzien in de technische mogelijkheid om de verwijderde content met een druk op de knop door te sturen naar deze juridische instantie. De juridische instantie zal vervolgens zo snel mogelijk, maar uiterlijk binnen drie werkdagen beslissen of de verwijderde content manifest illegaal is. Indien de reporting of specific data. Such a requirement may include, for example, the data necessary to assess the risks and possible harms brought about by the platform's systems, data on the accuracy, functioning and testing of algorithmic systems for content moderation, recommender systems or advertising systems, or data on processes and outputs of content moderation or of internal complaint-handling systems within the meaning of this Regulation. Investigations by researchers on the evolution and severity of online systemic risks are particularly important for bridging information asymmetries and establishing a resilient system of risk mitigation, informing online platforms, Digital Services Coordinators, other competent authorities, the Commission and the public. This Regulation therefore provides a framework for compelling access to data from very large online platforms to vetted researchers. All requirements for access to data under that framework should be proportionate, reported per individual Member State and appropriately protect the rights and legitimate public and private interests, including trade secrets and other confidential information, of the platform and any other parties concerned, including the recipients of the service.

Proposal for a regulation
Recital 65 a (new)

Text proposed by the Commission

Amendment

(65 a) Minimum interoperability requirements for very large online platforms can create new opportunities for the development of innovative services, overcome the lock-in effect of closed platforms and ensure competition and user choice. These requirements should allow for cross-platform interaction by recipients. Very large online platforms should provide an application programming interface through which third-party platforms and their recipients can interoperate with the main functionalities and recipients of the platform. Among the main functionalities can be the ability to receive information from certain accounts, to share provided content and react to it. The interoperability requirements do not prevent platforms from offering additional and new functions to their recipients.

Justification

Recital to explain Article 33a on Interoperability as proposed in the Draft Opinion.

Recital 101

Text proposed by the Commission

(101) The very large online platforms concerned and other persons subject to the exercise of the Commission's powers whose interests may be affected by a decision should be given the opportunity of submitting their observations beforehand, and the decisions taken should be widely publicised. While ensuring the rights of defence of the parties concerned, in particular, the right of access to the file, it is essential that confidential information be protected. Furthermore, while respecting the confidentiality of the information, the Commission should ensure that any information relied on for the purpose of its decision is disclosed to an extent that allows the addressee of the decision to understand the facts and considerations that lead up to the decision.

Child impact assesment

1. All providers must assess whether their services are accessed by, likely to be accessed by or impact on children, defined as persons under the age of 18. Providers of services likely to be accessed by or impact on children shall identify, analyse and assess, during the design and development of new services and at least once a year thereafter, any systemic risks stemming from the functioning and use made of their services in the Union by children. These risk impact assessments shall be specific to their services, meet the highest European or International standards detailed in Article 34, and shall consider all known content, contact, conduct or commercial risks included in the contract. Assessments should also include the following systemic risks:

a. the dissemination of illegal content or behaviour enabled, manifested on or as a result of their services;

b. any negative effects for the exercise of the rights of the child, as enshrined in Article 24 of the Charter and the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child, and detailed in the United Nations Committee on the Rights of the Child General comment No. 25 as regards the digital environment;

c. any intended or unintended consequences resulting from the operation or intentional manipulation of their service, including by means of inauthentic use or automated exploitation of the service, with an actual or foreseeable negative effect on the protection or rights of children;

2. When conducting child impact assessments, providers of intermediary services likely to impact children shall take into account, in particular, how their terms and conditions, content moderation systems, recommender systems and systems for selecting and displaying advertisement influence any of the systemic risks referred to in paragraph 1, including the potentially rapid and wide dissemination of illegal content and of information that is incompatible with their terms and conditions or with the

Online advertising transparency

Providers of intermediary services that display advertising on their online interfaces shall ensure that the recipients of the service can identify, for each specific advertisement displayed to each individual recipient, in a clear, concise and unambiguous manner and in real time:

(a) that the information displayed on the interface or parts thereof is an online advertisement, including through prominent and harmonised marking;

(b) the natural or legal person on whose behalf the advertisement is displayed and the natural or legal person who finances the advertisement;

(c) clear, meaningful and uniform information about the parameters used to determine the recipient to whom the advertisement is displayed; and

(e) if the advertisement was displayed using an automated tool and the identity of the person responsible for that tool.

2. The Commission shall adopt an implementing act establishing harmonised specifications for the marking referred to in paragraph 1(a) of this Article.

3. Providers of intermediary services shall inform the natural or legal person on whose behalf the advertisement is displayed where the advertisement has been displayed. They shall also inform public authorities, upon their request.

4. Providers of intermediary services that display advertising on their online interfaces shall be able to give easy access to public authorities, NGOs, and researchers, upon their request, to information related to direct and indirect payments or any other remuneration received to display the corresponding advertisement on their online interfaces.

Targeting of digital advertising

1. Providers of intermediary services shall not collect or process personal data as defined by Regulation (EU) 2016/679 for the purpose of showing digital advertising.

2. This provision shall not prevent intermediary services from displaying targeted digital advertising based on contextual information such as keywords, the language setting communicated by the device of the recipient or the digital location where the advertisement is displayed.

3. The use of the contextual information referred to in paragraph 2 shall only be permissible if it does not allow for the direct or, by means of combining it with other information, indirect identification of a natural person or a clearly identifiable group of recipients/persons, in particular by reference to an identifier such as a name, an identification number, location data, an online identifier or to one or more factors specific to the physical, physiological, genetic, mental, economic, cultural or social identity of that natural person.

Recipients' consent for advertising practices

1. Providers of intermediary services shall not, by default, subject the recipients of their services to targeted, micro-targeted and behavioural advertisement, unless the recipient of the service has expressed a freely given, specific, informed and unambiguous consent to receiving such advertising. Providers of intermediary services shall ensure that recipients of services can easily make an informed choice when expressing their consent by providing them with meaningful information about the use of their personal data.

2. When processing personal data for targeted, micro-targeted and behavioural advertising, where consent has been received, online intermediaries shall comply with relevant Union law and shall not engage in activities that can lead to pervasive tracking, such as disproportionate combination of data collected by platforms, or disproportionate processing of special categories of personal data.

3. Providers of intermediary services shall organise their online interface in a way that provides clear information regarding the advertising parameters and allows the recipients of services to easily and efficiently access and modify those advertising parameters. Providers of intermediary services shall regularly monitor the use of advertising parameters by the recipients of services and make improvements to their use where necessary.

Article 15 a

Preservation of content and related data, and mandatory transmission of specific items of information

1. Providers of hosting services shall store the illegal content which has been removed or access to which has been disabled as a result of content moderation, or of an order to act against a specific item of illegal content as referred to in Article 8, as well as any related data removed as a consequence of the removal of such illegal content, which are necessary for: (a) administrative or judicial review proceedings or out-of-court dispute settlement against a decision to remove or disable access to illegal content and related data; or (b) the prevention, detection, investigation and prosecution of criminal offences.

2. The illegal content and related data, as referred to in paragraph 1, shall be stored for six months from the date of removal or disabling. The illegal content shall, upon request from the competent authority or court, be preserved for a further specified period only if and for as long as necessary for ongoing administrative or judicial review proceedings, as referred to in point (a) of paragraph 1.

3. Providers of hosting services shall ensure that the illegal content and related data stored pursuant to paragraph 1 are subject to appropriate technical and organisational safeguards. Those technical and organisational safeguards shall ensure that the illegal content and related data stored are accessed and processed only for the purposes referred to in paragraph 1, and ensure a high level of security of the personal data concerned. Providers of hosting services shall review and update those safeguards where necessary.

4. Providers of hosting services shall transmit to the competent authorities of the Member States the illegal content which has been removed or access to which has been disabled, whether such removing or disabling access is a result of a voluntary content moderation or of a use of the notification and action mechanism referred to in Article 14. This obligation of transmission applies under the following conditions: (a) illegal content referred to in this paragraph means content which is manifestly illegal and is an offense according to [Framework Decision 2008/913/JHA and Directive 2011/36/EU]; and (b) the competent law enforcement authority to which to transmit such illegal content is that of the Member State of the residence or establishment of the person who made the illegal content available, or, failing that, the law enforcement authority of the Member State in which the provider of hosting services is established or has its legal representative; or, failing that, the provider of hosting services shall inform Europol. (c) when the provider of hosting services is a very large online platform in accordance with section 4 of chapter III, it must also, when transmitting the illegal content, add an indicating flag for the illegal content which involve a threat to the life or safety of persons.

5. Each Member State shall notify to the European Commission and to the Council the list of its competent law enforcement authorities as referred to in paragraph 4.

Or. en

Justification

The proposal does not provide a deadline for the assessment of notifications. In "a timely manner" may prove an insufficient benchmark, as it lacks a specific definition and therefore will be stretched to the limit by online platforms. Therefore, users shall be notified within 7 days about the platform's decision upon their notification to gain legal certainty about potential legal action.

Justification

To safeguard freedom of expression, Parliament has stressed that it is for the judiciary to decide on the legality of content, not on private commercial entities (resolution 2020/2019(INL), par. 5). handling systems referred to in Articles 14 and 17, respectively, by individuals or entities or by complainants that frequently submit notices or complaints that are manifestly unfounded.

Or. en

Justification

It cannot be expected that users can assess the lawfulness of content and it is not their task either. Negative consequences of misuse of notification results from wrongful and often automated complaint handling by the platform and waiver of human oversight. Especially members of marginalized groups with a different understanding of discrimination and people with little legal knowledge are about to be put in danger of suspension from notification procedures due to too many unjustified reporting.

Justification

This article risks undermining individuals' privacy in their digital communications, the right of presumption of innocence and EU criminal law's own protections. Companies will face incentives to over-report, rather than risk liability themselves, possibly leading to substantial amounts of useless and distracting information for law enforcement while severely threatening the fundamental rights of internet users. This is likely to disproportionately affect already marginalised and vulnerable groups and individuals who already face stigma and discrimination in society.

Recipients' consent for advertising practices

1. Providers of intermediary services shall, by default, not make the recipients of their services subject to targeted, micro targeted and behavioural advertising unless the recipient of the service has expressed a freely given, specific, informed and unambiguous consent. Providers of intermediary services shall ensure that recipients of services can easily make an informed choice when expressing their consent by providing them with meaningful information, including information about the value of giving access to and about the use of their data.

2. When asking for the consent of recipients of their services considered as vulnerable consumers, providers of intermediary services shall implement all the necessary measures to ensure that such consumers have received enough and relevant information before they give their consent.

3. When processing data for targeted, micro-targeted and behavioural advertising, online intermediaries shall comply with relevant Union law and shall not engage in activities that can lead to pervasive tracking, such as disproportionate combination of data collected by platforms, or disproportionate processing of special categories of data that might be used to exploit vulnerabilities.

4. Providers of intermediary services shall organise their online interface in such a way that recipients of services, in particular those considered as vulnerable consumers, can easily and efficiently access and modify advertising parameters. Providers of intermediary services shall monitor the use of advertising parameters by recipients of services on a regular basis and make best efforts to improve their awareness about the possibility to modify those parameters.

Risk assessment

1. Very large online platforms shall identify, analyse and assess, from the date of application referred to in the second subparagraph of Article 25(4), at least once a year thereafter, any significant systemic risks stemming from the functioning and use made of their services in the Union. This risk assessment shall be specific to their services and shall include the following systemic risks:

(a) the dissemination of illegal content through their services;

(b) any negative effects for the exercise of the fundamental rights to respect for private and family life, freedom of expression and information, the prohibition of discrimination and the rights of the child, as enshrined in Articles 7, 11, 21 and 24 of the Charter respectively;

(c) intentional manipulation of their service, including by means of inauthentic use or automated exploitation of the service, with an actual or foreseeable negative effect on the protection of public health, minors, civic discourse, or actual or foreseeable effects related to electoral processes and public security.

2. When conducting risk assessments, very large online platforms shall take into account, in particular, how their content moderation systems, recommender systems and systems for selecting and displaying advertisement influence any of the systemic risks referred to in paragraph 1, including the potentially rapid and wide dissemination of illegal content and of information that is incompatible with their terms and conditions.

Amendment

3 a. After establishing that a very large online platform has received a substantial number of orders to act, the competent Digital Services Coordinator may request necessary, proportionate and effective additional specific measures that the platform is obliged to implement. The competent Digital Services Coordinator shall not impose a general monitoring obligation or the use of automated tools. The request shall take into account, in particular, the technical feasibility of the measures, the size and economic capacity of the platform and the effect of such measures on the fundamental rights of the users and on the freedom of expression and the freedom to receive and impart information and ideas in an open and democratic society. Such a request shall be sent by the Digital Services Coordinator of the Member State in which the platform has its main establishment, or, if not established in the Union, its legal representative. The platform may, at any time, request the competent Digital Services Coordinator to review and, where appropriate, revoke such request.

Independent audit

1. Very large online platforms shall be subject, at their own expense and at least once a year, to audits to assess compliance with the following:

- (a) the obligations set out in Chapter III;
- (b) any commitments undertaken pursuant to the codes of conduct referred to in Articles 35 and 36 and the crisis protocols referred to in Article 37.

2. Audits performed pursuant to paragraph 1 shall be performed by organisations which:

- (a) are independent from the very large online platform concerned;
- (b) have proven expertise in the area of risk management, technical competence and capabilities;

(c) have proven objectivity and professional ethics, based in particular on adherence to codes of practice or appropriate standards.

3. The organisations that perform the audits shall establish an audit report for each audit. The report shall be in writing and include at least the following:

(a) the name, address and the point of contact of the very large online platform subject to the audit and the period covered;

(b) the name and address of the organisation performing the audit;

(c) a description of the specific elements audited, and the methodology applied;

(d) a description of the main findings drawn from the audit;

(e) an audit opinion on whether the very large online platform subject to the audit complied with the obligations and with the commitments referred to in paragraph 1, either positive, positive with comments or negative;

(f) where the audit opinion is not positive, operational recommendations on specific measures to achieve compliance.

4. Very large online platforms receiving an audit report that is not positive shall take due account of any operational recommendations addressed to them with a view to take the necessary measures to implement them. They shall, within one month from receiving those recommendations, adopt an audit implementation report setting out those measures. Where they do not implement the operational recommendations, they shall justify in the audit implementation report the reasons for not doing so and set out any alternative measures they may have taken to address any instances of non-compliance identified.

Where significant systemic risk within the meaning of Article 26(1) emerge and concern several very large online platforms, the Commission may invite the very large online platforms concerned, other very large online platforms, other online platforms and other providers of intermediary services, as appropriate, as well as civil society organisations and other interested parties, to participate in the drawing up of codes of conduct, including by setting out commitments to take specific risk mitigation measures, as well as a regular reporting framework on any measures taken and their outcomes.

3. When giving effect to paragraphs 1 and 2, the Commission and the Board shall aim to ensure that the codes of conduct clearly set out their objectives, contain key performance indicators to measure the achievement of those objectives and take due account of the needs and interests of all interested parties, including citizens, at Union level. The Commission and the Board shall also aim to ensure that participants report regularly to the Commission and their respective Digital Service Coordinators of establishment on any measures taken and their outcomes, as measured against the key performance indicators that they contain.

4. The Commission and the Board shall assess whether the codes of conduct meet the aims specified in paragraphs 1 and 3, and shall regularly monitor and evaluate the achievement of their objectives. They shall publish their conclusions.

5. The Board shall regularly monitor and

Contribution indépendante à la gouvernance et la réflexion sur les nouveaux enjeux

Afin que de nouveaux principes et obligations puissent être régulièrement définis par une partie-prenante indépendante, le Forum sur l'information et la démocratie, organe d'application du Partenariat international sur l'information et la démocratie signé par 21 Etats membres, contribue à la gouvernance européenne sur les questions relevant du présent règlement afin qu'il puisse, par exemple, travailler sur des problèmes émergents.

a) Le Forum se voit confier le rôle d'un groupe permanent d'experts

b) Le Forum se voit confier un rôle permanent de think tank en ce qui concerne la mise en œuvre du DSA, du DMA et du Plan d'Action européen pour la Démocratie pour améliorer la résilience des démocraties et adapter leur réponse aux nouveaux défis liés à la désinformation et à la soutenabilité des médias.

c) Le Forum ayant également pour mission de procéder à des évaluations de l'espace informationnel, il est l'organe chargé d'assurer la transparence des plateformes et l'auditabilité des algorithmes. Il est chargé notamment d'organiser l'accès aux données pour les chercheurs et toutes personnes qualifiées, en évitant une publicité totale et en garantissant la confidentialité des données et le respect du secret industriel et commercial lorsque c'est légitime.
